Apple Connect 2010 is a week-long technical training camp designed by Apple Canada for people whose businesses are defined by "an ability to deliver superior services to their clients using Apple products and technologies."

The agenda for AC 2010 features real-life implementation, troubleshooting, and best practices delivered by Mac OS X subject matter experts, Apple senior engineers, Apple curriculum authors, and Apple evangelists. Invitees include qualified individuals such as: advanced support personnel at an Apple Authorized Reseller and members of the Apple Consultants Network.

This is the third year in a row that Apple Canada is putting on this training event at the BMO Institute for Learning in Toronto. And, this will be the 8th Apple training camp (four in Canada and four in the U.S.) that Alex has gone to since 2005.

Apple Connect 2010 promises to be the best yet.

"The BMO-IFL is an amazing facility," says Precursor Founder Alex Narvey. "And this year's speakers list is better than it has ever been!"
