Adobe fixes PageMill 1.0.2!

Adobe has provided its second update to PageMill —the company's W-Y-S-I-W-Y-G World Wide Web page editor. In addition to adding features and bug fixes, version 1.0.2 fixes a serious data-corrupting flaw introduced in 1.0.1. The new updater and a newly updated PageMill Guide is available on the Precursor BBS in the Files:Adobe Stuff conference.

FireBall Hard Drive Problems

Some Quantum FireBall hard drives are experiencing problems that could lead to loss of data. The drives have a Write Cache that when enabled in external drives that are connected to PowerMac or PowerMac clones can have data caught in the cache and not written to disk when the power is cut. Internal drives and drives formatted with Apple's software are not affected. APS has an update to PowerTools 4.0.4 that cures the problem. Power Computing has developed a utility that can turn off the Write Cache (although this also causes a corresponding loss of performance). These and other FireBall fixes are posted in the Precursor BBS FIles:Utilities Stuff:Disk Drivers folder.

Connectix has released an update to its Speed Doubler utility that fixes a variety of bugs when working with Apple's new System 7.5.3. The Speed Doubler 1.1.2 updater is available in the Files:Updaters Stuff folder on the Precursor BBS.

Canvas 3.5.4
