

Mac OS X Now Pre-Installed!

While Manitobans were taking a Victoria Day long-weekend, Apple Computer was busy making a momentous announcement. Starting May 21, all new Macintosh computers will ship with Mac OS X pre-installed. (The default operating system will be Mac OS 9.1 which will also be installed). Should you be using X? The latest issue of MacWorld says no. Apple Ships 17" Flat Panel

Another momentous development at Apple's Worldwide Developer Conference was the announcement that Apple will henceforth sell only digital displays. To make this a reality Apple dropped prices on its 15" and 22" flat panel displays and replaced the 17" CRT display with a new 17" Studio Display. Prices, pictures and links below:

Mac OS Server 10.0

Apple also introduced the long awaited update to AppleShare IP, the Mac OS X Server software and two Mac OS G4 Server hardware configurations. The new Mac OS X Server integrates powerful server applications such as an Apache web server, Samba for Windows file sharing, WebObjects® 5 application server and QuickTime® Streaming Server 3, to provide industry-standard services to Macintosh, Windows and UNIX clients and networks. MACintosh Manager 2.0 provides enhanced network administration
